

February 20, 1976

subdivision is improper by the Legislature. I am saying this for the record so when you vote you know exactly what it is you are voting for. In total disregard of what the language of this proposed amendment is, it means what I have just told you, and whether you accept Senator Lewis' motion or not to separate them in this fashion, you still are faced with the big issue, whether or not, you are going to enact the anti-Christ amendment.

PRESIDENT: Senator Dworak.

SENATOR DWORAK: Mr. President, colleagues, we have now come to the point where we have agreed that it should be split so that the people can clearly vote for one section or another section of this bill. We have agreed that we have two sections in this bill with completely different interpretations and meanings, results, but we won't do that on this floor for our own vote. On the floor, we are still voting for the combination. This is a wonderful thing. We can go home and tell the people back in Nebraska, depending upon what group we are talking in front of, is, yes, I voted for that bill because I was really for this section, but the section you are opposed to, I was, too. It is kind of a cop out of accountability by this Legislature to the people of Nebraska. Second, on this section pertaining specifically to handicapped children, there is nothing in that wording that precludes a parent from turning down existing public services to attend a private institution. As I read the portion on handicapped children, if services are available such as we have available in Columbus, but the parent would choose to go to another school, then with approval of the local authority, this could be done. So we were kind of led to believe that we were providing for only those services that were not elsewhere available. That, in a fact, is not totally or technically true and I think this is establishing a very dangerous precedent for the further continuance of our public educational system.

PRESIDENT: Senator Mahoney.

SENATOR MAHONEY: Mr. President, Senator Chambers was giving me some sage advice right there so it took me a second to get up and I will try not, Senator Chambers, to talk very rapidly so that I use up all my minutes and I am sorry that I did not stay up late last night and watch the late, late show in which you are one of the chief performers and you caught my English indiscretion, but I would say, Senator Chambers, I can see your attempt here today in trying to fight the approach of Senator Lewis' one amendment which divides it into two subject matters. This is the way that the bill is palatable and in which it should go across on the constitutional amendment. Senator Dworak just simply amazes me. Senator Dworak, this morning in his talking on the amendment, Mr. President, wants to go into the handicapped end of it. He gave a great speech yesterday concerning 666 in which he pleaded long and hard for the fact that he contributes to private schools in areas and this morning he comes back and his approach, his attack, is against the handicapped section, and in